

Welcome to our Visitors' Guide to Las Vegas, created just for DLFers by the locals!

A few other reminders...

Weather

The average low-to-high temperatures in Las Vegas during the month of October are 58-82 degrees Fahrenheit. However, this is only an average. The weather could be considerably warmer or cooler, so be sure to pack breezy clothes for hot days and have a layer or two handy for night-time activities just in case.

Above all, be sure to pack sunscreen & keep water with you at all times!!!

And don't forget your sunglasses - the sun is very bright!

Other Resources

We've heard from many colleagues who are excited about the venue, but know that, for some, Las Vegas can be a difficult place. DLF values the participation and well-being of every attendee. We are, as always, committed to providing a safe, inclusive, nurturing, and respectful conference experience for everyone. As we note in our Code of Conduct, on-duty conference staff, identifiable by their name badges and white lanyards, will be available at conference social events as well as during the daily program and after hours, on call.
